

GRACE SPOTLIGHTER

Romans 6 — Do you not know that all of us who have been baptized into Christ Jesus were baptized into his death? ... If we have been united with him in a death like his, we shall certainly be united with him in a resurrection like his.

The baptism of a Christian brings life where there was only death before. Baptism is resurrection. Baptism is Easter. Baptism is our entrance into the very kingdom of heaven.

There are many wonderful days in our lives. But there is no greater day than the day of our Baptism, and it will never be excelled. Our very best days, even if they could all be combined into one could not together touch the excellence of our baptism day which surpasses what nothing else can begin to touch.

Holy Baptism unites us with Christ in His death and resurrection. To be baptized with water in the Name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit is to be unshackled from the slavery to sin and witness the drowning of our own death.

God through His Son makes people His new, mint-condition creation. In baptism God breathes His Spirit into us. He washes our soiled nature clean and creates life in us as miraculous as the handiwork of Eden where God formed Adam into a living being.

Because of water baptism, consider yourself permanently delivered from the clawing reach of the evil one. Sin's quick sand has no hold on you. You are free to live without fretting or phobia. Baptismal water irrigates lives made new in Christ so that we flourish.

The flood tide of baptism has carried away

WE'VE CROSSED THE RUBICON

The flotsam wreckage of our sin. The ocean of baptism has drowned Pharaoh's army. The breakers of baptism have carried us to the promised land.

St. Paul makes the point that baptism is a point of no return. It is unthinkable that being delivered from sin and death a Christian should contemplate returning to it. By no means! Paul says.

How absurd for a prisoner set free from his cell and pardoned from the scaffold's hangman would wish to return to it. Do you not know what your Savior has done for you?

Christ died- and He took YOU with Him. He rose from death, and YOU were given his victory in baptism.

Death which has no dominion over Him cannot therefore conquer you. In baptism you have passed from death to life, from slavery to freedom, from doubt to certainty, from loss to gain, from bereavement to joy, from hell to heaven, and from sin to righteousness. All this was given you in a baptism that can never be taken away because your baptism is into Christ.

For you, Jesus Christ "crossed the Rubicon," the baptism of his suffering and death (Mark 10:38) There was no turning back. Crossing the Rubicon is an expression that comes from the history of ancient Rome. Julius Caesar committed an irrevocable act, led his army across the Rubicon River, and became guilty of breaking the law. It was his point of no return.

Caesar was a mortal man whose greatness and worldly victories could not defeat sin or death even with an army at his back.

The conquest of sin and death required a different man, a perfect man, the man who is God who would pass a point of no return carrying a cross, a man righteous in Himself, who would be charged with guilt for doing so- a man without an army, without worldly greatness, and without cover. This man was Jesus. He assumed our flesh, took the responsibility for our fallen sin, and invaded the territory of our corruption. He crossed his Rubicon from life to death, from righteousness to iniquity, from freedom to slavery, from decency to degradation, from blessedness to anguish. And never looked back.

In infancy Jesus was taken to Egypt, to the land of plagues and slavery, of bondage and death. In his maturity he went to Golgotha and the tree of the cross, the place of disgrace and death.

But it could not hold him. Not Egypt. Not Herod. Not perils or betrayals. Not Pilate. Not Calvary. Not even the tomb.

And now in the resurrection of His body there is again no turning back.

The death he died he died to sin, once for all. It's done! Neither He nor we will ever die again.

The valley of the shadow of death has been traversed, and in Him we have come to the green pastures and still waters where goodness and mercy follow us all the days of our lives. There is no going back. We walk in the newness of life.

In baptism we have crossed the Rubicon, crossed the Red Sea and traversed the Jordan. Death has forever lost its dominion. We have been given pure and unending life. We who have died to sin can no longer live in it. We are the baptized; the people of the resurrection, dead to sin and alive to God in Christ Jesus.

The day of our baptism is the greatest because it is the new day that will never end.

Birth Order – Does it Matter?

Principal Miss Annette Rudick

Is there a reason why over half of the US presidents, the majority of astronauts, and a large percentage of Rhodes scholars are firstborn children? Why is it that there is a high percentage of firstborns in the fields of medicine, law, and ministry? Why is it that firstborns tend to have high motivation and a strong need to achieve?

Firstborn children seem to have a head start on life when compared to subsequent children. This head start seems to follow them through life. Research shows that firstborns tend to walk and talk at an earlier age. For a time, the firstborn gets all the parents' attention, interest, and expectations. In response to all this individual attention, firstborns tend to be more responsible, better communicators, and more goal oriented. Also, parents often seem to have a more intense relationship with the firstborn than with other children.

Being firstborn, however, is not without its drawbacks. Because of their higher need to achieve, firstborns tend to experience more anxiety and frustrations. Even as adults, they tend to be perfectionists or hyper-responsible in their daily activities. They are often more guilt prone than children born later in the birth order.

In contrast, by the time the youngest child comes along, parents are usually more relaxed and comfortable with their parenting ability. There are other children to be concerned about. The rules may often be more relaxed, and day-to-day expectations may be lower. Since older children are available to take on responsibilities, the youngest child may become less responsible and more dependent. On the other hand, the youngest child may become more sociable and freer of stress because he or she is less likely to be competitive and achievement oriented.

In between these two extremes is the middle child (or children). This child often finds that, in any activity, the oldest can do it the best and the youngest can do it the cutest. There may be some jealousy at work. The oldest child is out there doing well, and the youngest is entertaining everyone. As a result, the middle child may feel left out. It often seems that middle children are searching for their particular "claim to fame" in the family. They establish their identity by filling a niche into which no other member of the family has become involved.

While birth order is fun to examine and interesting to speculate about, it is not all that important. What is important is that all children know that they are dearly loved by their parents . . . and their Savior.

We have set the date for Grandparents' Day. It will be on May 26th. Activities will include a worship service, classroom visitations, a delicious lunch, and musical presentations by our school children.

May 27th the entire school will go to Williams Township Park and have our annual school picnic complete with hot dogs, fun, and games. The pavilion has been reserved so we will go rain or shine. Of course, we hope for shine.

Memorial Day is May 30th and there will be no classes in session.

Our 7th/8th grade students are going to Washington D.C. with Trinity and Zion Bay City. They will be gone over the Memorial Day holiday. They will return on June 2nd. They will be back to join us in our last day of school and closing Chapel on June 3rd.

Graduation Day has been set for June 5th after the 9:00 a.m. church service. We are graduating two eighth graders. The graduates are: Craig Dufresne and Bailey Heading

Mr. Gledhill

Spring may be officially on the calendar, but the view out the window or the feeling at recess speaks otherwise. But, such is the method of Michigan's welcome of spring. We have been inundated with recent rainfalls that challenge riverbanks. We have swung from 65 degrees to 25 and back up again. I saw rain, snow, and hail within 5 days of each other. Oh, how I love teaching a weather unit in the early spring!

Earth Day is April 22. It was founded in 1970 by U.S. Senator Gaylord Nelson, but only after several years in the planning. Frustrated that the environment was a "non-issue" in politics in the 1960s, Senator Nelson went to Washington, D.C., and presented an idea that the Attorney General Robert Kennedy and President John F. Kennedy both liked. What ensued from that meeting was a "five-day, 11-state conservation tour in September 1963" by President Kennedy. (The tour took place a mere two months before the president was assassinated.) After several years speaking throughout the country on the environmental degradation Nelson saw all around him and spurred on by "teach-ins" and the anti-Vietnam war protests taking place across the U.S., the senator finally hit upon an idea -- create "a huge grassroots protest over what was happening to our environment." With "neither the time nor resources to organize 20 million demonstrators," Nelson, his senatorial staff, and dozens of volunteers, including thousands of schools and local communities, brought together an American public just waiting for a platform to voice their concerns about the environment. Nelson said, "That was the remarkable thing about Earth Day. It organized itself." After 40 years, Earth Day has organized itself into 77,862,183 people having pledged to do their part to help planet earth. This year, Earth Day 2011 is being organized around the theme of A Billion Acts of Green, which encourages individuals, corporations, and non-corporate organizations to "live and act sustainably."

The Kindergarten through 6th grades enjoyed Disney's African Cats as a salute to Earth Day. They learned quite a bit from the natural documentary. They are already anticipating next year's film that was previewed.

The 7th and 8th grade science class has witnessed a bitersweet irony. In the wake of the earthquakes and destruction that has emanated from Japan in the recent months, we have chapter-by-chapter dug into plate tectonics, earthquakes, and volcanoes. They have been able to further understand what they see on CNN Studentnews because of what they study.

The 3rd and 4th science class did a simple but poignant demonstration. We collected milk cartons from lunch, rinsed them, poked a pin hole in the bottom, and set them on cups to set for 30 minutes. This was to show them how much water is wasted in 30 minutes from a dripping faucet. I was concerned at how many students volunteered their dripping faucets at home. So check those faucets, people!

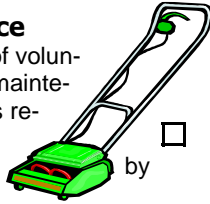

The countdown is officially 31 days of actual school days. The horses are nearing the edge of the pasture where they will see the barn, and there won't be any holding them back. (For you city-dwellers, that is metaphoric for them seeing the sanctity and comfort of home and bolting for it).

Missionary Care

It doesn't happen very often, but once every few years all of our missionaries in Africa get together. We had such a gathering in Malindi, Kenya March 26-31. This gathering gave us the opportunity for some very needed meeting and fellowship time together.

The gathering was sponsored and paid for by Grace Place Retreats. Dr. John Eckrich and Dr. David Ludwig led a retreat on missionary health – spiritual, physical, emotional and relational well-being. We especially appreciated the great worship opportunities. Life on the mission field can lead to great weariness at times. We are most grateful to LCMS World Mission and Grace Place Retreats for their great care for all of us!

In addition to the missionary gathering, Joyce, Naomi and I took a couple of personal days and visited Amboseli Park near Mt. Kilimanjaro. It was wonderful to get away for some personal time. This is something we have rarely done in Africa.

MACO NEWS: Outreach in Etebi!

MACO student, Rev. Peter Eyoumoh is working with church members to reach out to the people of the Etebi community. Their goal is to share the gospel and establish a vibrant congregation in that community.

Please join us in prayer for 1) Rev. Peter Eyoumoh and:

- 2) the health and well-being of our LCMS missionaries in Africa and around the world.
- 3) the election process in Nigeria and for Christians to courageously share the gospel in times of adversity.
- 4) Luke and Jonathan as they try to figure out what to do when school gets out in a couple of weeks.

Elections in Nigeria

On Saturday, April 16th Nigeria re-elected incumbent Goodluck Jonathan. President Jonathan is a Christian from Southern Nigeria. When the Christian president was re-elected, fighting broke out in many mostly Muslim cities. Reportedly 500+ people were killed, thousands were injured and 74,000 people were displaced! Today, elections were held for state governors. We wonder what tomorrow's results will bring! We are most thankful that Jos, the city where we live, experienced little or no violence.

Traffic outside our house is light after elections

How do we pray in these circumstances? May God lead our Christians to respond in ways that touch the hearts of people who need to hear the gospel! God can use even these events for the good of His church and His mission – may His kingdom come to the thousands and millions of people in Nigeria who have no other hope than the election results they desire!

A Special Graduation!

On Saturday, May 7, Luke will graduate from Concordia University Chicago (River Forest). Luke will graduate with a double major in Chemistry and Biology.

Presently Luke is trying to figure out the next steps of his life. I will be in Chicago for Luke's graduation as I will be in the USA to attend to some medical dynamics at that time.

For anyone who wishes to send a note of congratulations to Luke, his address is: boerber@yahoo.com or % 3809 Westchester Blvd., Jackson, MI 49203.

Thank you for your prayers!
